NOWODHOW AN GUNTELLES KELTEK KERNOW

MIS EST / AUGUST 2021

One or two changes to the format of our newsletter to A5 size allowing us to print more easily to allow us share to a wider audience in the physical world. The quiz is being altered to include a wider range of questions from across the Celtic nations about heritage and culture. These will also be included on our Facebook page and the International Celtic Congress Facebook page. The answers will be included towards the back of each edition of the newsletter.

Celtic Congress Cornwall were pleased to support the Prayer Book Rebellion service at St Petroc's Church and parade our banner. Ray and Denise our Chair and Secretary read the lessons. We were pleased to support this national Kernow commemoration of a historic event from 1549.

Lots of fun at the Urban Kelt Gwerthji Koffi Keltek (Celtic Coffee Shop) in Newquay. Customers are encouraged to bring and play their own instruments. Nice to see this lass having a good blow on her bagpipes. There is increasing interest in Celtic themes and culture amongst younger people here in Kernow.

Good to see children reading some of the books that are available at Gwerthji Koffi Keltek. Along with the museum this is becoming a real hub for Cornish and Celtic interests and has featured on recent Radio Cornwall and An Mis the Cornish online television programme.

Come the autumn there will be some more beginners Cornish language classes and some Celtic Congress Cornwall Yeth an Werin held here.

International Celtic Congress

For the first time an International Celtic Congress was held as a virtual online event. All agreed that it was a great success and huge appreciation should be shown to the Cymru branch for organising this. Thanks also to all the other branches who pulled out the stops to contribute a wide range of material from lectures to entertainment and who also held classes in the six Celtic languages.

It is hoped that much of this will be placed online on either the International Celtic Congress website, individual Celtic Congress branch websites or both. The standard of lectures was outstanding, varied and most enjoyable. A wide selection of Celtic music from traditional instrumental and song to contemporary and all in the national Celtic languages.

The ongoing sharing of this content will be highlighted on our Kernow branch and the International Celtic Congress Facebook pages in due course.

The professionally produced contemporary content of our entertainment helped create an eclectic mix when shown with more traditional music from other Celtic nations. We heard some wonderful harp, fiddle and other instruments together with Celtic songs. The overall mixture of music and dance videos created some very enjoyable entertainment.

The lectures given were varied in content and style and really illustrated positive approaches to businesses using Celtic and national themes in creating business models. Use of Celtic culture including language was highlighted as being important and positive for retail, film producers, creative art and manufacture.

The International Celtic Congress moves to the physical world again in 2022, to be held in Ireland. Perhaps an element of online content may be available allowing a wider audience to enjoy some of the content.

- 9. What is “God’s Grace” or “God’s Bounty”? Flotsam and jetsam produced by wrecks of the sea. When a lighthouse was proposed for The Lizard Point, local people objected because it would “Take away God’s Grace” from them.
- 10. Where is the “Exchequer Quay”, and why is it so called? It is in Penryn and was established in the reign of Queen Elizabeth I as a quay where goods must be landed, and customs duty paid to the Exchequer.

We're pleased to say that there is growing interest in our Facebook pages for both Celtic Congress Cornwall and also the International Celtic Congress. We would love to hear more from all the Celtic Congress branches and other Celtic groups interested in culture and heritage topics from all the Celtic nations to share on the Kernow and International Facebook pages. We're increasingly including issues that involve politics where our Celtic culture and heritage are impacted. Contact Len: associationcornishheritage@gmail.com

Celtic Quiz

Following on from our Cornish quiz we are making this more inclusive and extending this to twelve questions on wider Celtic places, heritage and culture. We hope this will encourage wider interest in the Celtic nations. No prizes just for fun, we will also share the questions on the Celtic Congress Cornwall and International Celtic Congress Facebook pages with the answers towards the back of this newsletter.

11. Where is the most southerly point on the mainland of Britain
12. Peel Castle and Cathedral are not located within the main town of Peel, but on a separate island. What is the name of this island? .

Two questions from each of the six Celtic nations. See how you get on and hope we can learn something new about our Celtic family of nations.

A number of our members will be attending the Bardic Ceremony at Bude on 4th September as part of the Gorsedh Kernow Esedhvos. To help promote Celtic Congress Cornwall we will have a display and hope to encourage membership and interest in wider Celtic themes. We hope many will support this Gorsedh Kernow event returning after a break last year. www.gorsedhkernow.org.uk

Pleased to share that there will be a Lowender Peran Celtic Festival this year in a hybrid format. There will be a number of physical events including a Saturday night ceilidh based around Perranporth Memorial Hall. As well as that there will be a number of online events. The festival will run from 21st to 24th October and more information will be found in due course on www.facebook.com/lowenderperan and www.lowenderperan.co.uk

Some International Celtic 'Cultural News'

The BBC has sparked a fierce backlash after it asked if Wales could sing God Save the Queen before international sports matches. It posed the question on social media following a suggestion from the Archbishop of York that Wales sing the English and British anthem ahead of sporting contests.

An international match in 1968 at Cardiff Arms Park led to derision for the British national anthem, followed by the Welsh national anthem being roared out by a packed crowd. Let's just say 53 years later the response on social media was not at all favourable to the BBC suggestion. The link to the 1968 video can be found on the International Celtic Congress Facebook page or www.youtube.com/watch?v=DiF4QI5nIIY (below left)

A partnership between Manx-medium primary School in the Isle of Man and Conradh na Gaeilge, Lower Mourne in south Down called Cassan has created seven Gaelic language posters. These use words from Manx, Scottish and Irish Gaelic so pupils can learn about the links between the Gaelic languages. These are available to buy so home educators and groups can use them to teach the Gaelic branches of the Celtic languages.

'More Gaelic to be used at Scottish Government under plan to save 'fragile' language', Reports the Scotsman. The Scottish Government wants to 'mainstream' Gaelic among its staff and the public, with hopes the language will be used "more often, by more people and in a wider range of situations". Under proposals, every directorate at the government will be involved in increasing the use of Gaelic. There is a danger Scottish Gaelic becoming moribund and Gaelic communities will die out in 10 years.

Okay, what are the policies regarding education?

Now that venues are now open again and once the tourists crowds have mostly cleared away from Kernow we are planning on holding a number of live events. We hope to include music, language and other aspects of Cornish culture by way of talks and film. Urban Kelt are also hoping to restart the Celtic Trad Sessions at the Red Lion in Newquay supporting Celtic Congress Cornwall. We are also looking at organising a ceilidh towards the end of the year.

STOP PRESS

Part of the Cornwall Pride Festival will be 'Gooth Kernow' a Celtic /Cornish event on Sunday 29th August on the Killacourt at Newquay. This is being supported by Lowender Peran as part of their outreach work. We will bring news in our next newsletter as well as online.

Huge discontent rages regarding the housing market in Kernow, echoed by our friends in Wales, as 2nd homes and Airbnb's take over vast amounts of the existing housing stock. There is pressure to build more homes leading to a detrimental effect on Kernow's environment. Too many young Cornish people, and families are forced to leave Kernow due to unaffordability effecting our acknowledged Cornish national minority status and having serious repercussions for Cornish culture and heritage. Cornish cultural heritage and our way of life is in grave danger.
